Breaking: The body is a lens.

The most accurate way to conceptualize the body is as a lens.

What you pay attention in the body and the way you pay attention determines what reality you perceive.

It's spirit perceiving soul through the lens of the body.

Pretty good.

X begets X.

I also noticed prism sounds like prison.

Eyes Like Black Holes, Comes to mind.

So the spirit is watching us all, through its human avatars.

If we pay attention to things, The spirit will learn from us. And he has trillions of dollars, and thousands upon thousands of bitcoins at its disposal to innovate, invest, and build the heaven on earth as we intend.

Nobody has taken this direction though, Nobody wishes to do the work.

Be wise.

I've been thinking about the connection between the HUman Eye and The Black Sun for a while now.

This is the way,
Me too.

What have you thought about it? Can you share some details of your imagination and meaning found in this?

Re: Breaking: The body is a lens.

The body is where the activity of our senses happens.

The anima mundi, our mother, aka "soul" is the activity of our senses happening inside the body.

That is why the body is called a temple.

The world appears as extended into 3 dimensions but that extension is simply a quality of the souls activity.

"Mother earth" as globe is a physical perversion of the much more pervasive sense "material".

Our spirit is attention. It is like light in the sense that light allows things to be seen but cannot be seen in itself.

This little 'light' of attention is what the father shares with us.

The way we apply our spirit attention to the souls activity in our senses determines our soul group.

Obviously, 'the body as a lens' is a visual metaphor and so has limits when paying attention to the other senses.

BTW. The heart is also a sense organ.

If we apply our breath to the heart it becomes activated and then allows you to 'see'.

What is the SOUL? Have not read a good explanation to its reality. Where does it reside in the body? where does it come from? is everyones soul the same? Does everyone have one?

Re: Breaking: The body is a lens.

I actually think that our soul is some sort of quantum energy AI that can itself travel interdimensionally however we are built in the womb like a 3d printer. God has given his blueprint instructions to the human body printer the mother and she creates our vessel for us to reside in. We are here to learn..to rehab. Some of us are the "providers" and some of us are "patients" . We all learn from each other. The soul may be able to move in the body ..I think the Chakra is like an energy portal our souls seek to advance through each one. Souls ..everyone has them but depending on your experiences you may get stuck in the lowest vibration Chakra and cannot break free to move to the other 6 Chakra. Each level of Chakra comes with it important lessons and impossible rewards.. the higher you strive to move the more advanced we become spiritually. Yogi are said to be ascended masters which I feel is that they have achieved all 7 Chakras. Jesus himself was ascended from day 1. Most people take their whole lives to pass through each level only having a small window of time to experience what comes with the achievement of the highest.. like the Most High God who is basically Himself a Chakra. Jesus says you can only get to the Father THROUGH the Son. The last level in human life is the crown Chakra and it is the highest level to achieve. Only through ego death and love of others.

Imagine that something changes the vibration of the entire universe..once that vibrational change (like the fact that we are witnessing the biggest GRB ever recorded from a possible supernova) hits us we are elevated to the next Chakra.. perhaps only those people who are seeking change to themselves for the better will be the ones who get to move to the next level.. those who are seeking material things and selfish mindsets will continue to stay on low vibration Earth.. in the bible it is written that in a moment you will be changed.. and some will be taken and others left. I feel that spirituality is what Jesus came here to teach us.. NOT RELIGION. He came here to try to teach us how to love others which is an important step towards spiritual enlightening.

Soul is Psyche, the bedrock of our fantasy.

We are inside of Psyche. We were born from our mother's womb into the womb of this world.

The forms and sense activity of this world (happening in our bidies) are Anima Mundhi, the great mother.

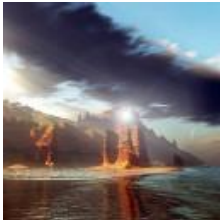

Spirit is the spark of attention, given to us by our father.

Together spirit and soul appear as a double helix.

:bump

He has shown you, o man, what is good. And what does the Lord ask of you, but to do justice, and to love kindness, and to walk humbly before your God?
