I wish you well on this journey, and hope you continue spreading your message.

Cosmic Science of the Ancient Masters -By H...

"...the mind is more powerful than any imaginable particle accelerator, more sensitive than any radio receiver or the largest optical telescope, more complete in its grasp of information than any computer: the human body- its organs, its voice, its powers of locomotion, and its imagination- is a more-than-sufficient means for the exploration of any place, time or energy level in the universe." Terrence McKenna

Li Ching-Yuen, the man who lived 256 years

Info on Li can be found on the net.

Li Ching-Yuen's answer to the secret of a long life: Tranquil mind. Sit like a tortoise. Walk sprightly like a pigeon. Sleep like a dog.

Tranquil mind. Approximately no one on Earth has a tranquil mind. Further, sitting/walking/sleeping/being like other earthly animals is spoken of in Taoism yet who gets it?

Li's teacher likely surpassed his age yet no "concrete proof" exists, so.. It must be false? :-)

These beings ate yet it is not food that nourishes their instrument. It is worth stating that just as transitioning from flesh to veg requires great care / proper approach so too does transitioning from say liquid to breath. Our endocrine systems are atrophied, our higher organs are dormant. Light bodies are lost in time, merkabic fields a new-age concept.

Maybe some do, but I sure don't.

I had a ten day water fast. I meant to go two weeks originally, but after ten days my body clearly signaled it needed FOOD, NOW!

It was an interesting experience, the body was actually fine with going without food at first, I just felt very heavy and sluggish. The body is normally running on light and accessible fuel, burning stored fat is a lot more work for it. No spiritual enlightenment resulted from fasting, but I did lose some weight, which was nice.

Thanks for sharing. I was reflecting on the phenomenon of one who has certain mystical experiences in meditation retreats in contrast to the one who does not. Which variables are at play here? The Mind is a powerful thing. Soul age could be an attribute.

30/60 day water fasts are not uncommon within the circle of those that engage in such practices. Vital organs can be damaged at certain points by those not yet able to sustain themselves from higher spheres.

For me personally, as aforementioned, the fruits were sweet and bountiful. Almost miraculous or.. certainly miraculous, lol.

Re: Nothing -> Light -> Breath -> Liquid -> Fruit/Seed/Nut -> Veg/Dairy/Egg -> Meat

An experiment was conducted wherein a tree was planted in a large bed of soil that was weighed prior to the tree being planted and then weighed again after five years of growth. The soil was the same weight as it was prior to the tree growing from it. From where did the tree receive the materials necessary to become the large/strong/heavy tree that it became? Hilton Hotema, author of Man's Higher Consciousness, postulates that cosmic/gamma rays are the answer. DNA as a sort of 'organismic internet' is also clearly a part of this equation. Carl Sagan had some interesting things to say about the role of cosmic rays in the growth of minerals and crystals. Others believe that cosmic rays even influence human consciousness in subtle ways unobservable by current scientific methodologies. See Less

This is interesting...

I've been studying stellar nucleosynthesis, and biological transmutation of elements for a bit now. Often we make mention of the interesting fact: If a chickens diet does not contain calcium, it still yields calcium egg shells. How does it make calcium in it's body, if elements are only created in the fusion/fission reactions naturally in suns?

I've also of course heard of sprouts being grown show the appearance of sulfur, where there is none in the soil or water being given to them. How does this happen?

Cosmic rays is a good hypothesis. In my field of research we often call it exotic vacuum objects, ball lighting, or coherent anti-matter. They seem to appear from the void, out of no where, interact with and become apart of physical 3D matter under certain conditions -- the one we can most readily recreate in the lab is within resonant plasma fields.

Videos of various Egely dusty fusion plasma ...

That technology may look / sound alien -- but resonant fields could be the "new fire". And imagine creating a coherent/resonant field of cosmic rays to indeed yield these almost magical effects upon matter.

Super interesting. Thanks for taking the time to share.

Recreating cosmic rays in a lab environment would be quite the accomplishment.

very old idea read here a long time ago. the 7 open at once. nothing new here and not the first time these 2 eyes alone have seen this idea here actually. here is my take on it. One plants one waters God gives the increase. < the actual truth.

Indeed. Very old. Ancient even.

Is anything new under the Sun? ;-)

I like your take. Thank you. Keep it simple.
