Re: Sick of this psychotic evil universe

Here is a protip I learned.

I used to be depressed. Badly so. I realised I was believing negative things about myself which were not really true, they were the darkest perspective of things.

It was going to kill me.

I knew some people from the churches you all ran around being happy all because they believed they were deeply enough.

I changed the tune I danced to, and low and behold I ceased to be depressed and things were good just because I willed myself to take that perspective even if deep inside I didn't really think it was so.

In this I discovered "Reality is Reactive"

If you need it darker, then go darker.

If you want it to be like shit, then make it like everything and everyone is against you. It will happen quicker than you please.

..Or you can walk the other side of the fence.

After that you work out how to separate yourself from "The Negative and detrimental to you" people and things are pretty good after that.

Reality is reactive. Positive people get somewhere and negative people get the worst of what they could expect in the long-run and have the gall to tell you "I told you so".

That is how it really works. Some call it Black Magic, others call it white magic.

Now a group of people have known this for a long time so they control what you think and feel.

In doing so they control mass reality, the one everyone says they believe in.

No, its not all in my head. Its genetic, environmental, experiential, circumstantial. Nobody's starting at the same starting line. You cannot simply be positive after a life of horrific experience. Its a simple law of cause & effect.

And even if you could manage to delude yourself that much, its still just delusion. You can be as fake positive as you want; you still require certain metrics to attain certain things you need to be happy, and if you simply dont have them, you wont get them.

Positive people did nothing to deserve or earn their positivity. They simply won a roll of the dice. If they were in my shoes theyd be just as negative as I am.

I'm tired of this new age garbage that life is what you make it and you can control it with positive thought. Go to war or take the place of someone who is in poverty in a 3rd world country and see if your thinking positive theory works.

Re: Sick of this psychotic evil universe

Why does everyone blame either life or the Universe for their problems? Both are awesome. Life gives everyone 120 years as soon as they show up and the Universo provides free room and bord.

So? Both do not owe anyone yet everyone gets those things, free of charge.

Think about that next time you want to blame someone for your troubles.

Free room & board? Are you insane? Nothing is free in this godforsaken world. It was the universe that forced me into this existence against my will. Wow, thanks for the not even 120 more like 85 years of abject misery. I should be so grateful for it. Such a joke.

Aside from being asinine, its luciferian. We do not have libertarian free will. At best we have free will inside of a largely deterministic framework.

Not that Im agreeing with him because nothing is as simple or true as what hes saying, but what they call "magic" is simply shifts or alterations of perception and manipulative psychology. Because of its magical-like essence, application and effects.

Lol. It wasn't the Universe that forced you here. Your Mommy and Daddys hormones did that.

How much did you pay life per year? How much rent do you pay the Universe rent a month?

misery is because you don't know who you are or how you fit into this "World" and others take advantage of that.
