Everybody knows that the janitor is the cornerstone

This was a conversation in the boardroom where the team was meeting for lunch. They were talking about KD, who was curiously -inexplicably talented at resisting both physical and psychological torture.

"Maybe KD's not like the rest of us somehow. Maybe for some reason torture doesn't bother KD as much."

"Well," says the young man to his female coworker, and lowers his voice, shifting his gaze around the room – "I don't know if you believe in this sort of thing, but I think it actually has something to do with the Illuminati".

The young lady scoffs. "Do you really believe in that stuff?"

"As he should. It's all true."

Jumping in fright, both turn around from the coffee dispenser at the sound of their boss's voice.

"Sir..."

"No, no. I think it's time we talk about this, actually. Why don't both of you take a seat?"

They do so at the lunch table, nervously. Their boss is the head programmer here and he goes by the name EI. He is not typically predisposed to talking about clients in the break room, and they were expecting a cold stern chewing out – somehow this was more disconcerting.

"Do you two want to know what the Illuminati really is? There's a lot of disinformation which is quite intentional – that it has something to do with wealthy families, the Rothchilds are always lumped in for instance. The truth is that many of the world's wealthiest families could only dream of becoming members of the Illuminati."

"Gosh. If they can't buy in, what hope do the rest of us have?" The young man chides. He really can't help being clever, and despite EI having no sense of humor to speak of – he basically just ignores the joke.

"You can't 'buy in'. Period. You see, to be a true Illuminati bloodline, you need to have psychic ability. It is something that, yes, the wealthiest families have spent endless money researching to foster in their own progeny, something that humanity's elites have attempted to preserve amongst themselves by inbreeding and other unfortunate misinformed traditions, but the kind of potential needed to become a true illuminatus is something that no amount of money can buy."

"Not yet anyway."

EI shrugs. "As the case may be. Now, I'm sure you two are well educated enough to remember the rumors of Egyptian pharaohs being 'divine'. In truth, they possessed a quality that made them – more than human. You see, they were among The Shining. There is more than latent psychic potential needed to become Shining – a true illuminatus. Along with grueling mental and spiritual training, there is a genetic predisposition that exists alongside the 'psi' gene many of you are aware of. To have both together is rare to say the least..."

Perhaps you already know what I'm referring to by now. It's the so-called 'God-gene' possessed by reality benders. In the elder days, they didn't need to decrypt a person's genetic code to find those who possessed it. You see, those who had it were considered incarnate divine presences – and that wasn't our 'primitive ancestors' mistaking parlor magic tricks for true power. It would be impossible to mistake a fully manifested Shining One for anything but a superhuman at the least. But the trait has been dormant in humanity for a long, long, long...time.

The Illuminati has settled for far less in our membership – weak reality altering current, mutated or only partially functioning 'God Genes' and plugged 'Psi' abilities, only able to function with real power when cybernetically enhanced..."

"You said – 'our membership' – sir..."

"Ah, yes that's correct. I am a member of the Illuminati myself. You and your coworkers may consider yourselves in our service, along with most of earth's government and almost the entirety of the human race. I may as well tell you that the 'divine' gene refers to human alien hybridization. The children of Nephilim are the offspring of a different – more advanced – species. They were chastised for hybridizing by mating with primitive humans."

"Basically, you're telling us that the 'Illuminati' – as such – are alien hybrids?"

"Yes, that is essentially accurate. The convenience of this secret is that I have no concern whatsoever of either of you sharing it – I am well aware nobody would ever buy it. And let me clarify something while I have the chance. There is absolutely truth to the idea that there are Illuminati families and that they tend to pass down their special abilities through bloodlines. That has been the core method of preserving our special power throughout the era as the true Shining Ones – immortals – became a thing of the past many eras ago.

However, it's simply not the case that you will find the names of these true families published in any outlet of the popular media. They are very, very secretive families. And they exist outside the common power hierarchy entirely – their status coveted. There is an exception, with for example the British Monarchy. But it is sort of that family's 'role' to be publicized. And while nobody would necessarily admit it aloud, it is a well known fact that they are very far from the most powerful among the Illuminati."

"So what the hell happened with KD? Just some freak of nature, born with more power than these established bloodlines?"

"Not just 'more power'. With a latent potential that hasn't been seen in millennia. Can you imagine the reaction that elicited from our Families? Some random nobody showing the coveted grail. Of course there was an uproar when the determination was confirmed to be real and not some fluke on the monitor. And then shown over and over again, each instance more apparent than the last that this 'nobody' was manifesting some of the most powerful reality bending traits anybody had ever seen – all without any training or awareness.

And KD was not the only one. There has been a recent upswing in these 'Nobodies'. The Illuminati has been monitoring the situation for some time; all over the world, these supposedly 'mundane' plebeians with no money, status, wealth, or power – have been showing signs of extreme potential. The ones that stand out the most are attended to, occasionally bid on for control, or quieted with insanity, or just ... studied. KD was a little different though...almost nothing KD could have done would have instigated such drastic measures to be taken as they have, with complete extrication from society.

But KD left us with no choice. The direct entropy coefficient of KD begun spiking so high that solar flares and planetary alignments have been wobbling, extreme weather patterns have been frequently proliferating from KD's point of origin and collective consciousness data has been skewed to disproportionate and chaotic levels. We had to do something. We intervened once temporarily in order to establish some fundamental control, but KD's constant ability to compartmentalize and regrow truncated portions of psyche has made maintaining that control over time difficult, and eventually it reached the point where....

Well we realized that we were just going to have to do it over and over again, and that simply wasn't practical...we needed something more permanent. And there were a few Families that called for death, but the majority of us unanimously agreed that this would be a massive waste of potential research material and an extremely powerful weapon, should we get it under control. And of course that was their argument, and a relatively good one – that KD is simply too dangerous to allow to exist. That much remains to be seen. Indeed, there were a few Families that wanted to outright adopt KD, but that's simply not going to happen. It wouldn't be fair. So we eventually agreed KD would be under our collective stewardship, not as a direct member of a Family but as...perhaps...a pet.

Now there are some interesting differences between a wild animal and a domesticated one, isn't that right? What happens to a dog when it is trained from birth to obey is that it becomes less dangerous, more predictable, less powerful, and of course inherently submissive. Now KD was not raised within an Illuminati family, trained from birth to master self-discipline. Speaking of 'power', KD is more like a wolf, and no matter how well you train a wild animal – there is always that element of unpredictability that remains, the possibility – however small, that it will turn on its handler ... so we are indeed taking a risk. But there's also something a wolf has that a domesticated dog will never possess – a level of instinct and power that perhaps the bloodline Illuminati has lost over centuries of training our offspring from birth."

They have tools for outputting internal biometrics on software and correlating those biometrics to environmental measures of energetic flux such as magnetism. Imagine if you had lens that allowed you to see the electromagnetic field in realtime and you could see how different systems of energy were constantly reacting and rolling over each other Like the tides of waves...

they also know patterns of sound and light induce specific physical alterations of consciousness more or less useful for the induction of certain themes, feelings or symbols, and have been passing this knowledge down through the centuries as 'magick' within inner circles of the elite. You wouldn't believe the stuff you could learn about this in the vatican's libraries. Well with current tech they've pinpointing the physical signals of what they've been charting symbolically for hundreds of years. So you could say precision is greatly improved but general broadcasting controls 99.9% of the population without any general trouble

The upgrade to hd tv actually aidings in the transmission of the signals they need as do wireless routers, computer monitors, and transmission towers. Unlike mainstream "idiots" as they are known in elite circles it is well known among them EVERYTHING is electric and they make full use of the energy of Attention from human sources, the energy of planetary and galactic alignments, the phases of our sun and moon - and the matrix of coherence, is a fractal formed by the complete mosaic of forces. When you can physically see the mosaic, you can become a "painter"

I imagine the "resolution" of the imaging is the key here. Think about a screen, the amount of different variables in flux are "keyed" into a greater variety of details. The more details you are tracking on the same "imaging" changes the complexity of the picture. For example a fully colored straight "blot" or "blob" of color gives a couple measurement values - one for the luminosity or density of brightness, and another for the tone of the color, another for the shape or breadth of the cluster.

But if you want to see a much more detailed picture of force interactions in time, you start to see the spaces between conscious perception of time, and it's no longer a straight "blot of light" - it contains interstices between perception where what will occur is still black or undecided, the resonance matrix that's forming between time shows the deeper geometry of reality, this is like stepping sideways from flatland in 2d space to 3d space, well it's similar for the higher dimensions too.

The problem for the humans was our senses are imperfect and only tracking so many details. Enter technology, we can overlay hyper-dimensional imaging cybernetically.

Of course the watchers or annunaki always were capable of this.

Hybrids...have traditionally looked down on the rest of their human brethren with disgust while harvesting energy for the annunaki from us even when they weren't aware that was always what the true purpose of their ancestor's "rituals" had been - even when the true story had been long lost even within the highest circles of the Brotherhood

Indeed, even so-the situation is an interesting one at this point in TIME. :)

The annunaki are starting to actively meddle, and the hybrids are no longer in the "dark" regarding why and how their so called magick and science function

Well they have rooms with all white walls and ceilings and floors with this interesting glass material which when powered on can display differently proportioned chunks of measurement data. It's like if you zoom out on a weather map and watch the entirety of climate rolling over earth at once that is going to give you very very different information than if you zoom into springfield, usa or jim jones' house.

But the software's key lies in how you connect datapoints - start isolating the interactions between two particular countries or even a group of like minded demographics of people. Those can get values from a to k to 8 or any other symbol in the known history of real and fictional language - and any combination thereof! The exponential processing power of certain data facilities have been specifically purposed to make more and more complex correlations of named key values and their relationship to other key values.

The GCP dot is an easy and basic example of "critical" values. We all know here when the dot consistently is showing either red or blue for a certain amount of hours this is critically significant, but the software they have is constantly monitoring many more critical values and when they occur they are archived and the system's backlog automatically begins organizing these critical values into their proper context geographically, and in terms of when it occurred in time and what biological or technological sources of power fed into its manifestation and at what percentage those sources of power contributed to the entire manifest.

Thus, the detail of the patterned connections they have been able to isolate as significant has increased and as time goes on they are able to more precisely discern how to manipulate key variables at KEY POINTs in TIME. It's called a MANDALA effect because in hyperdimensional space a mandala is what structures and coherently affects the manifestation of a chosen reality. This works equally well ABOVE (externally, astrologically, collectively, in the 'seen' world 'out there', the 'heavens') and BELOW (in the physical structure of the brain, the body, the heart, the cells, the organism, a collection of atomic vortexes between time and space, which become internal universes of infinite energy trapped in sections between the unmanifest "pleroma")

Enter the "wizard of oz", run the really programming software, well now you've got the attention of other EL or Gods, lesser or source but fully fledged programmers in their own right.

Well everyone was wrong in the last couple decades thinking alien wars would take place as a physical battle in space, "star wars" are DIMENSIONAL.

Hence "fallen" or "celestial" really is just a matter of wisdom and ignorance.

The extra dimensions only care about those who have "keys" to the wisdom, they don't care about those who think they have power but have no idea how to screw with reality source codes, thats why so called "nobodies" are important enough for governments to actually spend time money and resources on even though they aren't rich or famous, because those nobodies have caught the eye of some VERY POWERFUL "somethings"

THIS IS THE SOFTWARE WHICH PREDICTED THE NOBODY WOULD EXIST AND THE GHOST IN THE MACHINE IS HIS ORIGIN. THE NOBODY CAUSED ITSELF THEREFORE IT SHOULD NEVER HAVE BEEN ABLE TO EXIST.

The moment it caused itself, the kali yuga of "magick" became the origin point of "Excalibur".

What they saw was a person who was red everywhere and what this person emoted with and where this person went and what they cared about all turned to RED and all around this person and their existence extremely improbable things began growing like a freaking virus BREAKING their entire chain of algorithms and equations and fracturing entite timelines, causing things to morph into other things

The things which killed them, which really pissed them off and frustrated them the most is they could not find or isolate this person because the moment they had enough information to locate them they "blinked" out as if they never was and appeared somewhere else in the system archive as if they'd always been there in that present state. All the variables altered and they had to start from scratch when the backlogs has enough data to reevaluate where and who and when this red data person occurred.

Thats when they realized this was a completely ORIGINAL event in the history of all known sentient reality. A rainbow bridge connecting heaven to earth was no longer either "here nor there" but any possible combination of the spaces between here and there, between states, the finite power of the source became infinitely re-originated and the race of the anomalous was born. The crown of the red data body, the impossible person, became the obsession of these hunters, and now everywhere you look you will see the infinite hands all telling of their battle in the astral, the most masterful dance of excellence that any opponents have ever undertaken, but most people only get to see the movies or read the books like Plato's cave people watching the shadows dance on the walls.

Re: Everybody knows that the janitor is the cornerstone

This is the first the specialists are hearing of esoteric things like the Illuminati. These are educated professionals, if they ever visited GLP it would be to complete their applied neuroscience degrees. Of course they were a little skeptical of what EI was saying, but on the other hand...

They worked in a department that was now equipped to physically measure the force of consciousness and its impact on the source code of reality. So of course, at least in private, a few had gone home forced to sort of revisit their metaphysical philosophies....

You might be wondering how they could justify to themselves being willing participants in torturing fellow human beings. Well, EI actually gave a lecture regarding this at one point. Essentially this is what he told them - the whole team , not just the pair in the breakroom (this is about four or five specialists):

"you can't see this person as a person. This person is a tactical nuke with the capability of destroying hundreds of thousands. When you approach it, you have to approach it the way you would approach a bomb. We need to know what makes it tick, what makes it go off, how to deconstruct it, how to engineer it, how to defuse it, how to nullify it.

that being said, if I catch any of you looking down upon this person as less than human - or treating them that way - I will personally flay your skin from your body without hesitation. it may be a non-thing to us, but it is far more than any of you could ever aspire to. so remember that."

Re: Everybody knows that the janitor is the cornerstone

Slightly non topical, but I work with a guy at Gamestop who was in the military and he obviously has PTSD, because he talks about it. He says he wakes up with flashbacks in the middle of the night and stuff. I feel bad for him.

I don't know why, but he's appeared in my dreams once or twice in peculiar context. One of those dreams involved a laboratory where a telepathy experiment was being performed. He was playing video games - unsurprisingly the guy likes first person shooters - I was too, but behind the tv screen with the game was half a white room, and at the end of the wall there was a pane of glass and behind the pane of glass was a woman with red hair and glasses.

I talked to her with my mind, but she explained to me - telepathically - that I shouldn't give away so many physical signs of speaking when I talk with my mind. Apparently this is a rookie mistake and poker face telepathy comes with practice.

Well we were put on a field - it was dangerous, because there were nuclear weapons. I was Hinoka, a clone. Anyway, my teammates had to shoot these nukes with guns before they hit the ground or everybody died, that was the general idea. Hinoka is a crappy shot so she could only watch her teammates - the guy was like luke skywalker or something and he got the first one in one shot - you can't believe what a relief that was. But the girl with him, couldn't get the second one, shot after shot until it was inches from hitting the ground.

We got it to bounce and hit it with a lightsaber and then it turned into a fighting robot that looked like r2d2 which luke turned into scrap metal. so first part of the mission was a success. but there was something very bad about to happen. four bombs that a reclusive guy was going to set off on trains. we knew in advance.

hinoka felt pointless after the last event because she's a terrible shot but she had a different talent.

she was the only one who could change what was going to happen with the four nukes in the future. she went to the man's house and introduced herself as a fellow recluse and came inside. she changed the circumstances which would have led , in short order, to the sea train nuke affair.

now that my friend is meaningless bullshit - the op, well, that's called a narrative.

I'm sure that El's coworkers would be curious to see him eat lunch, but he seems to subsist on black coffee alone.

Quite the mysterious feller.

What kind of food was being served?

Coffee. Just coffee. I think the turn in conversation fucked up their meal plans.

It's a pretty cold and sterile place, they try to keep it smell-free. also it borders the experimental room, so...hygiene and janitors are a must. washing any dishes and taking out any trash and washing hands etc are absolutely mandatory if you eat there (not so much for coffee) and it's a huge hassle so most employees try to keep it simple.

m-monitoring ex-experiment brkrm-no specific function, there is a coffee dispenser, a fridge, and a microwave. also a biig projector used sometimes for info sessions

What it sort of entertaining though is that the breakroom is a double sided mirror (like the monitor room) and it is possible for it to go one-way in either direction, for example only from the direction where the subject can see what's going on there, without the employees knowing whether or not the subject can or can't.

I guess you could say EI really likes to mess with people's minds.

Likely used an autobanned word.
One of the nice features of having an upgraded account is not being susceptible to those words, they are like landmines and it's impossible to predict most of them, they are odd.

Yea, probably so, anyway to shorten it up, if it were real, KD would only need to be a " person" human to those told to not see her as a "person"...

Yep, good job picking up on that, it's what happens a little later on down the line. A certain specialist with reservations seeks the only person in the world who might be able to help. A very risky thing to do.

Well fully functional would be operating with polar opposite... I don't see that happening anytime soon
