If you want to help build Microfinance Infrastructure, later...

- 1) Learn how to write on github. Learn GFM, how to fork a repo, and how to write a good doc. That should take 5-10 hours.
- 2) Get good with codepen.io - Learn how to search, collect designs you like, and fork a pen. its fun, a true treasure trove.
- 3) Learn enough CSS and HTML that you can take a template, and change the text/colors/fonts and pics to your liking.
- 4) Help research lawful money, so we can recover our true value.
- 5) Stay healthy, ditch unhealthy carbs, so you're ready for a possible long haul.
- 6) Dream big, and take an exciting first step. Be Frodo and Sam on a March morning. Logically follow your excitement.

Re: If you want to help build Microfinance Infrastructure, later...

You might want to consider those who control the current global financial system have already developed a SCHEME and seem posed and ready to deploy it.

For real. The same folks that have been doing it for a few hundred years are planning to keep the franchise " in the family ". Not that your talents and expertise are underestimated or disrespected...no.

Likely the Daokoin would be accepted at inns and establishments world-wide!

Good luck, Daozen, and do keep us posted on your progress!

It's an incredible site, a true treasure trove...

Well worth spending a few weeks or months getting good at codepen.

We use this template a lot:

This is agreeable and acceptable answer...

I will add that we need 10,000 experiments to bloom... a one-size-fits all financial architecture is frightfully dull, don't you think?

It will actually be called the Doozlecoin.

May I proffer some unsolicited advice?

1) Those who wish to cooperate with us should do so i) as genuine equals ii) With a very light contract drawn up by us.

2) The reason I have chewed through handlers like satay sticks these last few years, is that every single one of them has treated me like Tommen Baratheon, when I want to be treated like Tyrion.

I think you get that.

With Us, the more you let go, the more you will receive... Those who manage to solve that emotional and managerial equation will do well. It's the spiritual equivalent of "Switching off your targetting computer" (Episode IV).

More than happy to hear ideas here.

Going forward,

Re: If you want to help build Microfinance Infrastructure, later...

Regarding this lash and lag business...

I don't want to be the PR guy that tricks everyone onto a smartpay grid. I know one of the houses was setting me up for that.

The future I'm building is "The Shire with Laptops"

And that means slowing down on 5 and 6G, for example.

I'm actually very amenable and flexible if people sit down and talk to me as an equal.

Re: If you want to help build Microfinance Infrastructure, later...

My last two wannabe handlers openly referred to me, right to my face, as "Some Little Kid" and "Problem Child." They are both in the rash compacter now. Oops!

The reason it broke down with the last group:

1) They wanted me to do PR for their ridiculous system...

2) I wanted them to do PR for my system.

Obviously, there is room for negotiation, flexibility, and new ideas... I love to listen to people's input.

My big nightmare is some bloodliner type in a country house offering me The Deal.

I figure if we just work with a simple one page MOU, it'd be so much more amenable.

Do you get me? Im sure some of you get me.

Re: If you want to help build Microfinance Infrastructure, later...

I would like to, for example, set up some duckweed or vegan protein farms in Indonesia and the Philippines.

It strikes me that Nat + Alex, or Mr Massimo, (for example) could start that initiative with 5-10 phonecalls.

Just one of many dreams.

Those who helped us first would be the fulcrums on which history pivots.

Re: If you want to help build Microfinance Infrastructure, later...

And I'm not cosyng up with either The Bloodliners, the upper-middle classes, the petit-bourgeoisie, the factory workers, or the homeless.

I side with none.

I find you all equally irritating.

Laughing out Loud!
