Well lets go. Who are the worst, in your opinion.

Not talking about a full scale war.

I did, and am doing, everything I can to avoid that.

But some of the top dogs need to be challenged.

Just bored of this stand off.

Daozen, your rambling screeds are nonsense. You realize that there is no one, or nothing, more contemptible to many than one who professes to have knowledge not actually possessed.

What exactly are you trying to accomplish?

Why?

What is your standing to make any or all demands?

What is your venue?

Are you on psychotropic medications?

Thank you

Regarding your first "paragraph", study 40k Harlequins, if you wish to understand me better. And watch Colombo.

I have never professed to be anything other than a Black-Eyed Fool seeking Redemption.

~O~

Your Kind questions are answered below. Thank you for giving me the opportunity to think and focus.

- Accomplish? Take over My Infinite Creation, no one elses.

- Standing? Infinite Eternal Judge of My Creation... just like you are, of yours, and Jimmy Saville's is, of his. We are all Judges of Our Private Creation.

- Venue: My body, My vessel, My Infinity.

- Psychotropic meds? No. Unless you count turpentine and Iodine. I do get a little drunk on summer energies, every June to August.

PS, that accusation-as-question gambit is rather trite, don't you think, Lord R?

If I wish to cavort and tumble for the spinning stars on a boiling August day, I shall do so...

~O~

Now then, let us discuss the renovation of Waddeston Manor...

After we tear down those horrific balustrades, we will need to hire some locals, and repaint.

Do you have a Dulux Color chart?

RSVP.

Online

Resources.

No, Daozen, once you figure out what you are trying to accomplish, I suspect you will not find the RESOURCES you seek, or need...ONLINE.

You seem to lack the core instincts of one in control of ones destiny. I would posit, further, that you are not "heading back" to true understanding...far from it. You are a wildly spinning compass needle in a geo-magnetic storm.

Do you have any core values or beliefs? Have you any understanding of natural law? If so, from where did you gather this knowledge?

Quoting: Anonymous Coward 77589412

Thank you.

If one pays "yearly or bi-yearly property taxes", they truly own no ESTATE. It is puzzling to me to think in such an "oxymoronic" (if you will) way

The following background/etymology of the word you used may be of benefit to aid your understanding:

estate (n.)

early 13c., "rank, standing, condition," from Anglo-French astat, Old French estat "state, position, condition, health, status, legal estate" (13c., Modern French état), from Latin status "state or condition, position, place; social position of the aristocracy," from PIE root **sta-* "to stand, make or be firm."

For the unetymological e-, see e-. Sense of "property" is late 14c., from that of "worldly prosperity;" specific application to "landed property" (usually of large extent) is first recorded in American English 1620s. A native word for this was Middle English ethel (Old English æðel) "ancestral land or estate, patrimony." Meaning "collective assets of a dead person or debtor" is from 1830.

The three estates (in Sweden and Aragon, four) conceived as orders in the body politic date from late 14c. In France, they are the clergy, nobles, and townsmen; in England, originally the clergy, barons, and commons, later Lords Spiritual, Lords Temporal, and commons

Quoting: Anonymous Coward 77589412

One can (only) live "free from municipal, county, or state property taxes" without "allodial", "fee simple absolute" or any other title.

It is the choice many make to engage in word-play they have no understanding or training in which to undertake that creates their "taxes" or "tax obligations".

I like the last one, best! Pay your fair share!

If one looks to the taxing authority to receive a "word waiver" which deprives said taxing authority of "ill gotten gains"...one may look for some time without success.

There is only one true CONVEYANCE. You, sir or madam, lacking said knowledge, will never be LORD OF YOUR PARTICULAR MANOR.

Pity, that.

Quoting: Anonymous Coward 83948201

Your first sentence is false, when the "(only)" is included. There are fee simple absolute titles in the United States and elsewhere that aren't taxed. When you don't include the only, then it is true in some instances for nomads and natives deep in the jungle, aside from the dozen or so countries that don't impose regular property taxes.

Of course, most pay taxes as a result of their or their ancestors CONTRACTS.

The key is not to look at the taxing authority for a tax waiver, but to the judge who can see your abrogation of contracts and issue a decision in your favor.

Depending on the country, there are multiple true conveyances to this effect. And you assume that you are interacting with someone who lacks the knowledge of how to obtain one.

Re: This thread: for Legal Challenges, Affidavits, Death Matches, and Declarations of War

Busy doing paperwork. Appreciate the discussion.

Vaguely related to the topic;

I realized a while ago:

A true sovereign DOES NOT run around chasing anyone for a signature. You simply write your truth, and see if anyone challenges it. No challenge = consent.

So you do not wheedle the bickering groups to sign a peace treaty. You just state the structure, and terms, and ask them to challenge it. No challenge means total consent.

Now, whether your decree actually gets enforced, that is another subject. That depends on your Will, and how much Backup you have.

~O~

I studied Natural Law by studying the I Ching, Taoism, and Carlos Castaneda, I've also been guided by many offline adepts, and Direct Knowing. I have reread the Rofsy 2009 disclosure several times, and learnt from my own repeated mistakes...

I do not pretend to be an expert, or even an intermediate. If I was a beginner, that'd be a good start. Nothing like stumbling out of The Shire on a chilly March morning, frost underfoot. One of the best feelings in The World.

Im just trying to get 2% better, today.
