No?

Under what authority are you speaking?

Do you have any authority to stop me from experimenting?

Do you even have permission to be in this world?

Take a softer, more humble tone, and we might get on better.

Multiple systems might work in parallel. It's healthiest for everyone. Competition.

There are Goldbacks, but they're not accepted currency for payment of taxes or debt or commerce.

They might one day be accepted currency, probably in Utah and Idaho

Re: Hand Minted Local Currencies could be the Start of Local Economic Redemption

Contrary to popular conspiracy thinking, local currencies are legal. There are hundreds worldwide.

[\[link to en.wikipedia.org \(secure\)\]](https://en.wikipedia.org)

Quoting: Daozen

And contrary to your way of thinking it's a fucking NIGHTMARE!

-Going back to the early 1800's, there were so many different currencies floating around that in the old west most places preferred gold coins or "specie" -gold dust itself- that accepted at a high rate than currency due to uncertainty of that paper's value. And up until the 1930's national bank notes were issued in cities all across the country that didn't exactly streamline the national economy.

That's when the Federal bank notes we know today were created to standardize the entire system.

Well its certainly an honour to be surrounded by so many currency experts.

To be fair, I realized something similar.

Notes are easily fraudable, and therefore a no go.

OTOH, Cashless is a True Nightmare.

So, how do we walk the line between the Fiat Debacle and the Cashless Nightmare?

The way forward:

A mixture of digital pay AND locally-issued coins.

These are perfectly legal, and basically hipster meal tokens, so please no one even start on the legal aspect.

Release limited edition runs, like a Guided By Voices EP.

How do we deal with fraud etc?

1) Research point of sale verification systems, ancient and new.

Edit Post
Remove Post
Report Abusive Post
Report Copyright Violation

2) Keep average value to a 3 dollar coin, making it (hopefully) not worth the while to counterfeit.

3) Serial numbers, about which no more will be said publicly.

4) Keep project open source, small scale and advisory, like DHH or Linus, so I can't be blamed if it doesn't work. LOL!

They would easily want me to front for a crypto exchange, pull the plug, and stitch me up publicly, probably for a feckin ten stretch.

No such luck, guvnor.

no way jose!

Re: Hand Minted Local Currencies could be the Start of Local Economic Redemption

There is a local currency or sorts up here in the iron range of MN though seldom used anymore since everyone just pays with cards. They are similar to Poker chips with the name of the establishment you bought it from. These poker chips can be used at any participating business and prices at one beer per chip. I realize lots of bars have their own poker chip thing. This is difference since a chip bought at one bar can be used at any bar in the region.

Over the years the price per chip has went up. But chips bought for 50 cents in the 80s still buys you one beer in 2023. So theoretically there's no beer inflation.

NICE TRY to tap-dance around the "legal aspect" but that's entirely what your lunatic scheme boils down to: ONLY the federal government can issue coinage/currency. PERIOD. And that's the only thing that matters in this moot discussion.

Incidentally: "fraudable" is not a word and "perfect" is not spelled "perfick"... but at least you tried.

I want to go exactly along these lines at first. Cheers.

The aim is to prove-the-concept in 5 street food stalls, and scale on Github.

If only 1% of people used them, I'd be fine.

I really just like to prototype at ground level.

The key is to get them Suitcase-Out-Of-Pulp-Fiction awesome looking.

I said last night, what would a coin issued by Apple or Musk look like?

Re: Hand Minted Local Currencies could be the Start of Local Economic Redemption

I need to Reread Lord R's seminal post about brands. That was the only time he got the caustic-nutritional balance he'd been looking for. Other times, the ratio is off.

It made me laugh so hard I saved it.

ht***** tps://github.com/Morning\*\*\*\*\*star88/Low-Grid/blob/main/LORD-RUPERT-STUMBLE.md

I told him something about Strychnine and Myrrh over Xmas.

He got all withering over it.

If he daydreams on the fulcrum of those two nouns, he may find his place in Creation.

30% Strychnine.
70% Myrrh.

7:3

Most of you have those ratios inverted at best. Hence the problem Here.

I'm hoping he comes in this thread, with his signature catchphrase, so we can all cheer like it's a Christmas Panto.
