Musk could Hire Linus Torvalds and DHH to audit the old stack, and Jose Valim / Chris Mccord to write a new version...

Re: Musk could Hire Linus Torvalds and DHH to audit the old stack, and Jose Valim / Chris Mccord to write a new version...

what happens in spring?

he all the sudden is an expert in shit he knows nothing about?

why does he even care about twitter or free speech? He said we don't even live in base reality.... you know, cause in 10,000 years video game graphics will be, like, so real you guys so why does he care about a world he claims is a simulation?

Quoting: Anonymous Coward 84986782

When did I say he would become an expert?

He is close to clueless now, like any human or new tech CEO would be.

By Spring,

- He will have 100 hours knowledge of self study on the stack. Still a beginner, but an informed beginner. Not enough to wade in and make changes, but enough to know when they are lying to him, and enough to call an auditor to grill them. Publicly, if need be.

- He should have got 1 to 200 hours of independent code/stack auditing done, costing around 50 to 100K.

- He could have reached out to Hacker News, open sourced as much code as possible, and invited comments plus incisive questions. People are ready to tear those bluffing cucks apart, because they are all over the tech world... They bring down entire companies.

- He may have started a separate, ground up rewrite of Twitter in Phoenix / Elixir... totally separate from the current stack, and showcased how he can host a million users for a tiny amount per month. Bleacher report saved huge money moving to Elixir... so could Twitter.

- He will have hired some high profile experts who are on his side. I named plenty in this thread.

Thank you for your kind question.

but but but i thought he was a real life tony stark and didn't need to hire smart people because he's a visionary genius so he's not a brilliant intelligent man, he just hires brilliant intelligent people, then takes all the credit for their work and becomes a billionaire celebrity got it

Quoting: Anonymous Coward 84986782

Ok, so he has eaten a slice of humble pie this week. That's good for the soul. Have you ever dined on crow?

And yeah, he hires brilliant people. Who wouldn't?

Im not a starry-eyed Musk fanboy. I don't care about SpaceX, for example.

But..

My enemy's enemy is my friend.

It's just fun watching this play out.

your enemy's enemy... you mean liberal climate change silicon valley superhero musk's enemies?

did you buy a tesla yet to virtue signal like all the liberals did?

it is fun watching dumb fuck mcgee finally show the world just how fuckin dumb he is i mean anyone with a brain saw he was stupid as shit when he said there was a 1 in a billion chance ew live in base reality because.....wait for it..... in 10,000 years from now video game graphics will be sooo real guys what an intelligent mind he has!

10,000 years from now video game graphics mean today is not real will humans still be playing video games in 10,000 years? will they even still exist?

kind have ot in order for his suuuuper smart reasoning and logic to be even remotely plausible....which it isn't, remotely

His tactical error was to tackle them like a prize-fighter, when instead he should've been a Tywin Lanister type referee / Gamesmaster. He only needed to do the wrecking-ball thing for 2-3 weeks.

Now he needs to host the fight.

In the Red Corner, Hacker News / Stack Exchange volunteers, plus hired auditors.

Blue Corner: A few thousand encircled soy-lib coders, who will have their stack torn to shreds by Spring.

The battleground is the discussion over the unwieldy stack. He admits he's not an expert, and watches the auditors ask uncomfortable questions until the Twitter-fraud-coders frame cracks, publicly.

You sound like you belong in sales, marketing, fundraising, press conferences, festival organization... fields like that.

There are 5 Infinite Paths for you.

Plenty of money, women, land, experiences, friends to enjoy in those tumbling worlds.

Others are better at building.

Let the builders build, and help them sell it.

Or not...
