Soooo it's pretty much common knowledge now that the earth isn't a globe, right?

Re: Soooo it's pretty much common knowledge now that the earth isn't a globe, right?

How do the geosynchronous satellites get to their position at 36,000 kms out in space?

Quoting: Anonymous Coward 82006668

The same technology that's used in UFOs. As you may already know, UFO tech has always been human made. ETs from other planets aren't real.

Also weather balloons follow a predictable path with the winds.

Quoting: Anonymous Coward 81938823

Yes, aliens are a figment of the imagination, but you are saying that man has the ability to accelerate craft at insane speeds and not break the sound barrier, nor the crystal dome. To 'de-materialize' and move to the position out in space. Then why are we fucking around with car tires and fossil fuels?

Quoting: Anonymous Coward 82006668

All I'm saying is that it uses properties of electromagnetism to stay afloat, not 'de-materialize'. Telsa developed the original technology for it.

And it should be obvious why we have car tires and fossil fuels... do I really have to say it? They don't want us to have advanced technology unless it gives them power over us. They only allow technology to be released which can help enslave us, not free us.

Quoting: Anonymous Coward 81938823

Certainly, the ptb don't want us to have a clean and sustainable environment, that is why they are pushing the green agenda..to the point of planned genocide.

If the tech exists to 'stay-afloat' by magnetic forces, how TF does that get the satellite out past the dome?

They are within the dome. There's no such thing as deep space crafts or anything like that. We can't physically send things to the stars and planets.

There's no evidence that it's a ball shaped rock. It looks like a luminous object perhaps made of plasma. But the important thing is that it appears to create its own light... it's a luminous object just like the rest of the wandering stars.
Not a dusty rock ball reflecting light.

Thanks for your wisdom. I worked at a university in the early 1980s and at the time was involved with helping a PhD student construct a satellite receiving station for geo weather sats on the KU band. We built a 5m dish, the low power horn antenna and gathered the data on AMPEX tape transports for processing and laser printing. We even built our own printer. I watched the first photo being printed and have the original still to this day. We stitched nothing together, it was a real photo of the planet on that day, received from space. Sorry about that!

Re: Soooo it's pretty much common knowledge now that the earth isn't a globe, right?

SGAnon had some interesting things to say about this. It's all getting confusing.

SGAnon: Antarctica - Flat Earth: 1:05 minute mark - sky ice, moisture-less, melts in minutes, exists in perfect balance, there are multiple realms, 7-12, some of which contain sentient beings very similar to us, who also have connection to the almighty. We have an ice wall that protects us from those realms but allows us to traverse into them. Some are hostile. The firmament itself above encompasses all of the realms (similar to a lid). Each realm is semi circle, full reign. We all meet at different points. The firmament contains stars, beams of light that emit specific frequencies into our realm. Some of those frequencies encourage healing. Some of those frequencies encourage connectivity between spiritual apparatus.. for example, when you feel an animals pain .. that's made possible by your own spiritual equipment and amplified by the firmament above.

What we believe to be planets are swirling bodies of energy that have spiritual connection and purpose to our own energy centers.. mirror our own energy centers, chakras. Spinning seas of ...

They mirror our own.

Sono luminescence, a massive light swirling within the inside a medium that generates enough energy that is a full solid as you will.

Scott: Where do you get all of this AG? Is it all your own research? Is it a spiritual download? Are you getting it in meditative sessions? From high level intel.

SGAnon: Tor browser and deep web, public accessible internet we all know of is about 9-10 percent. You'll find censored pages that talk about accounts from different military members or reports from scientists in Antarctica... or buried documents from throughout history and eventually you piece enough of these together you find the level of hiding is Leviathan. It's absolutely enormous. These people have been so afraid of losing control that they've literally had to lie about every single thing that comes out of their mouth. Sometimes he asks his mentor for clarification. Other times he tells him some of the crazy stuff you find I'm not privy to.

Scott: How do you define interstellar travel?

SGAnon: Other realms.. we're talking about the earth that we know right now is only one of a handful of realms and it's not the biggest. Our earth that we know of right now is enormous. It would take a lifetime or two to experience everything in this realm and that assumes you have been doing things all of the time. Understanding what we really want out of stellar travel is connectivity with other sentient beings to know that we're not alone, to know that there is a source of creation and absolute light, an infinite love that sustains everything. That's really what we want. We can find that perfectly as we move and travel through that ice wall. This is going to be a process of learning and be very careful as we make connections with other beings. Some portals are in the Antarctic ring. Time travel is possible and some of them, portal to sort of a separate frequency location in other realms as well, quick travel. The level of lying dictates that we have to be open minded to extra ordinary and surprising truth.

Re: Soooo it's pretty much common knowledge now that the earth isn't a globe, right?

I believe we live in a sort of simulation.

So with that we can manifest our own reality of sorts.

Extrapolating beyind that we can find evidence for the globe or for a plane.

It's whatever you want it to be.

I personally see Earth as a realm of sorts.

The people who mean us ill will want us to believe almost at gunpoint that we're this little blue marble in the middle of nowhere that just by chance has life on it.

Bullshit.

Now, the mind bender is if this is a simulation then obviously it was modeled after something so in some ways space, planets, and the like must be real.

Who the heck really knows besides those in power.

At least its fun to search for the truth and debate the triggered and narrow minded.

The azimuthal equidistant is more accurate than any spherical projection.

Sunsets occur when the sun travels west and the range of sunlight, the limit, is reached.

The compass is attracted to the magnetism of the north...no southern point necessary.

Re: Soooo it's pretty much common knowledge now that the earth isn't a globe, right?

any flat earthers have an accurate map yet? one with proper distances between known locations?

what about sunsets.. can those be accounted for yet?

or for the more scientifically minded.. why does my compass work if the earth has no south magnetic pole due to being flat?

There's no such thing as southern magnetic pole you fucking idiot. Only north exists. Learn how magnetism works before you make retarded comments about it. That's something all you idiot globetards have in common, you all think science is on your side yet you have absolutely zero understanding of it.

The image is a promotional graphic for Godlike Productions. At the top, there is a standard 1D barcode. Below the barcode, the words "GODLIKE PRODUCTIONS" are written in a white, spaced-out, sans-serif font. The background of the entire graphic is a dark, starry space scene. In the lower right, there is a silhouette of a person sitting at a desk, looking at a computer monitor. Overlaid on the lower half of the image is the text "What we don't investigate isn't worth knowing" in a white, typewriter-style font.
