Parallel structure guy here observing from the sideline. I would agree with the sentiment that if the work is to benefit the current failed and corrupt system, I will have no part. If you have the ability and desire to create a system or framework that exists outside the current ones for the betterment of mankind, the elevation of consciousness and the objectives of helping to elevate knowledge, understanding and wisdom which lead to God's (Natural) Law and therefore true freedom then I am interested.

Mark Passio said it best, we need to cultivate these traits as teachers so that the individual can become the monarchist of his inner domain leading to the outward expression of anarchy or without rulers in society. Anything less is slavery and a continuation of what we already have.

Observing with interest.

Mark is a good guy.

Synarchy is a good middle ground.

Open Source software drastically reduces power struggles in tech, as anyone can go off and amicably make their own customized version. If FB was open source, there would be 100 instances running, all different colours and flavours, and The Zuck would be a maintainer.

That's why I said it has to be open source, as the potential for misuse is far lessened.

I have been banging the parallel structure drum for quite some time, in my ignorance I did not realize our current forms of control are the parallel structures. It was A.L. Kitselman that inspired me in Hello Stupid where he posited government should be ground in wisdom and run on computers and concepts such as one vote for one man were inherently flawed.

Trying to flesh out that idea lead me to consider that we might need something outside the current control apparatus, if it were possible. I have always been leery of bitcoin and blockchain seeing them as already part of the system. Who owns the code controls all. I too posited it would have to be open sourced and taught to everyone who would participate so that the system might be self policing. From a programmer perspective, which I am not, I have no idea if that is possible.

I am interested to see where this leads and optimistic and hopeful. I think Mark's teaching about Natural Law should absolutely be considered foundational for an endeavor such as this. I do not know him personally, maybe in time that will change as I completely realized that his teaching and my pursuit of parallel structure based on wisdom, compassion and service to others are practically one and the same. The realization I came to was I was trying to elevate what already is and it makes more sense to you the foundation he has laid, no sense trying to recreate the wheel so to say.

My position with Mark's work is it seems to be missing application for those who are not teachers or have the technical ability to do what he does. The masses need something they can plug into as a jumping off point, something tangible they can see or participate in, Natural Law in practice and not just theory.

As I seem to understand some of this at a certain level I'm making an appointment to have my medication adjusted.

- We did the parallel structure thing successfully over the last 3 decades by setting up an Alt Herb + Nutrition Health Network. That was a massive success that millions of people participated in.

- We can do the same with finance. My aim is to help people raise their first 50, 500, 1500 dollars etc.

- I realized a while back that secret funds, banks and foundations are starting to disburse money on crowdfunding sites, and all the conspiracy ppl including me, haven't noticed.

- There are plenty of semi-tech jobs like UX / UI design and tech writer, that can be self-trained in a couple of months. Self-training on Github READMEs, and Codepen might be worthwhile.

- My project is here. My Github handle is banned here:

- Once you open source something, power struggles dissipate. What if you could make a copy of the Iron Throne with one click? What would that do to Westeros power dynamics? Imagine 100 Iron Thrones. That would be very healthy for 90% of society.

Likewise, what if The One Ring was open sourced? Open Source also allows for open, public code review. If Twitter was open source, they might only have a few hundred staff.

Open discussion, copiable code, and open code review make it pretty much self-policing. Don't like some control freak? Click the project and make your own version.

It all comes down to getting MONEY to the 10% of Earthers who can turn everything around.

- Learning how to write, raise and market a crowdfunding project is also a critical skill. Im learning it now.

Indeed, parallel structures are everywhere. The idea was a direct ps to government, an alternate form of government. Which is really an oxymoron as all forms of government are the ps of Natural Law. That being said, much like the ideal of anarchy in society (only possible in a moral society), the objective result would be a society that also exists without money.

I fully realize however there needs to be transition, we just cant flip a switch and create the ideal. At least not at this stage of consciousness. So projects that are focused on money are not really my cup of tea unless the project has the intention of proving that we can exist without any form of currency. We do what needs to be done and provide what needs to be provided because it is the right thing to do, which does not require money.

I always envisioned this as physical manifestation of an akashic record like "system", for lack of a better term atm. Where transparency is the rule, not the exception and we are judging our peers not based on materialistic qualities but spiritual ones. Tipping the pendulum. Leading to how we come to a consensus or vote, the more wise someone is based on peer review, the more say they would have. A spiritual meritocracy of sorts, with the over arching objective to raise everyone up to a full vote because everyone has attained and exhibited wisdom in all their actions. Documented for all to see and to plug into if they so choose.

I see there is potential for synergy in ideas presented here, some will lead to others but the most important aspect would be to come up with the goal of the over all project. What is the mission, then we will be able to decide if our participation is synergistic or not.
